Death Penalty Warnings Given Against Offering Aid To United Nations

LONDON, Aug. 7—Germany is undergoing a siege of "war nerves" comparable to that suffered by the French prior to the Nazi invasion of the low countries, reports from the continent indicated today.

The steady drumming of the "second front" chant from all quarters in the ears of Hitler's henchmen has perceptibly increased Nazi jitters concerning invasion of the continent.

Vichy, seat of the present French government and hotbed of pro-Nazi collaborationists, itself is having a bad attack of second front nerves, according to the Evening Standard.

Linking up reports of a big second front conference scheduled to take place in Moscow, this newspaper said that British and American forces soon may join Russian Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's army in the Caucasus.

French Fearful

The Vichy correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported to his editor that propaganda of the fighting French issued from London is comparable to the "war of nerves" prevalent before the Nazi attack on France. "Discussions of a second front predominate in France," this correspondent said. "The wildest rumors are circulating. New outrages and acts of sabotage in the occupied zones have contributed to create an atmosphere of tension."

"It is believed the second front will take the shape of an aerial invasion because the coastal zone is too strongly fortified," he continued.

"If Invasion Comes"

"If an invasion occurs the government will immediately issue a proclamation to the population to keep quiet and refrain from parking in the fighting under threat of severe reprisals."

"The decision of the government to invoke the death penalty for possession of explosives and weapons is the first sign of severe measures to be taken about the second front."

Warnings against aiding any allied invasion have been issued also to residents of Holland and mass arrests are reported in progress in Norway where civilian resistance has delayed German defense work.

One Stockholm report said the Nazis were undertaking more stringent precautions in Holland. The latest Nazi ukase decreed that all pigeons must be killed by August 13.

Chandler On Way To Alaska To Investigate, Says Action Is Necessary

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7—Joining other members of a senate delegation which leaves soon to investigate the critical military situation in Alaska, Senator A. B. Chandler (D) Kentucky, today added his voice to demands that the Japs be "kicked out of the Aleutians."

On his arrival in San Francisco, Senator Chandler immediately went into conference with two colleagues who will accompany him on the trip—Senator Harold H. Burton (R) Ohio, member of the Truman investigating committee, and Senator Mon C. Wallgren (D) Washington, member of both the Truman and Senate military affairs sub-committee.

Senator Chandler is chairman of the latter group. Together with Burton and Wallgren, he planned to meet today with Lieut. Gen. John L. DeWitt of the western defense command to discuss aspects of the tour and to make arrangements for the delegation's itinerary.

"Occupation by the enemy of even undefended islands constitutes a direct threat to this country," the Kentucky senator said. "If the Japs took Dutch Harbor, we'd be in real danger. Whatever it takes, we must get those fellows off the Aleutian Islands. If we don't, we're in for a lot more trouble than we've had."

"We're going up there to find out what's going on. This is no junk or lark. I want a maximum contribution made by this committee and we'll stay there until we get the facts."

Such facts as are gleaned on the tour, Chandler explained, will be given in a report to the Senate military affairs committee and then handed on to the Senate.

CONFESSED FIRE STARTER MAY BE JUST IMAGINING

CLEVELAND, Aug. 7—Origin of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey circus fire which resulted in the death of 43 animals still was undetermined today following the questioning of 16-year-old Lamandria Ford who was brought from Pittsburgh by Cleveland police as a suspect after he purportedly signed a confession.

Detective Inspector Frank W. Story expressed the opinion that the Negro youth had nothing to do with the fire despite his confession. Ford claimed that a companion named Jess Johnson threatened to stab him unless he tossed a lighted cigarette into a stack of straw in the menagerie tent "in order to get even with this circus for firing him."

Ford had been hired by the circus three days before the blaze occurred and was discharged "for not working fast enough" on Tuesday, he told police.

Johnson, 29, had been discharged with him and, according to Ford, asserted, "I am going to get even with this circus for firing me."

No new animal deaths due to the fire have been reported, but it may be necessary to shoot two more lions because of severe burns and an ostrich which cannot eat because of a burned throat and a cassowary are in serious condition.

NO LONGER MAJOR, BUT LIEUT. COL. ROOSEVELT

DAYTON, Aug. 7—It was Lieutenant-Colonel Elliott Roosevelt today instead of Major Roosevelt.

The son of the President took the oath as a lieutenant-colonel in the U. S. army from a hospital bed at Wright field. He is confined with a knee injury suffered, army officials said, at another air field.

Colonel Roosevelt will be in Dayton several more days, undergoing treatment of his injury, officials said.

Halted briefly in its drive on Stalingrad when Marshal Semyon Timoshenko threw in large numbers of Soviet reserves, the German army smashed through a narrow sector of the Russian lines in the Kotelnikov area today and resumed its steady eastward march.

Heavy Nazi tank attacks led to the break-through, forcing the Red army to retreat and take up new positions.

Within the space of a few hours, the threat to Stalingrad again became acute.

News of the setback came after issuance of a Red army high command communique which said that numerous German attempts to break through at Kotelnikov had been repelled.

Soviets Counterattack

Soviet troops in the bend of the Don in the Kletsakaya region improved their situation slightly, holding the enemy in all sectors and vigorously counterattacking at every opportunity.

Cossack troops continued to bear the brunt of the fighting south of Kuschchevskaya, inflicting heavy losses on the Germans. Russian forces south of Belaya-Glina continued to fall back as the momentum of enemy attacks increased. The Nazis used increasing numbers of parachutists in the Soviet rear.

The Soviets fought delaying actions in this area as certain units carried out an orderly retreat in the direction of Tikhoretsk. The Cossacks south of Kuschchevskaya were more successful in holding the Germans and Soviet forces counterattacked frequently, wearing down the Germans who are beginning to feel the effects of (Continued on Page Three)

LIEUT. DEAN WHITE HOME ON LEAVE FROM AIR DUTY

First Lieutenant Dean-White of the U. S. Navy air corps arrived in Circleville at noon Friday for a few days' furlough with his father, T. W. White, West Mount street. The visit is White's first in Circleville in more than a year. He has been in actual combat, but is not permitted to say where or when. He is scheduled to report to his base next Wednesday.

Flying Fortress Downs Six Jap Pursuit Planes

HONOLULU, Aug. 7—Details of a thrilling air battle over Wake island between an American flying fortress and six Japanese pursuit planes were disclosed today with the announcement that four of the enemy fighters were shot down and the other two probably failed to get back to their base.

Superior armament of the big American bomber enabled the well-trained crew to blast the Japanese fighters out of the skies one by one in a 40-minute fight, according to the stories of the fortress' crew.

Four of the attacking planes were the vaunted zero fighters and two were believed to have been German Messerschmidt or Heinkel type pursuit ships.

The flying fortress soared over Japanese-held Wake island Saturday on an undisclosed mission. There was no mention of bombing, although it was stated the crew carried out their mission successfully. The flight may have been a reconnaissance or photographic mission.

In any event the job was done despite the fighter attack and terrific enemy anti-aircraft fire. In addition to shooting down

BOARD TO SET WAR CHEST DATE

Trustees To Meet To Decide Best Time For Collecting Needed Cash

Date for Pickaway County's War Chest campaign, expected to be late in August or early in September, will be determined Sunday afternoon when trustees of the organization meet in Farm Bureau offices.

Frank Fischer, Circleville school superintendent and chairman of the War Chest drive, presided Thursday night when 30 members of the general committee met in Common Pleas courtroom to add Mrs. Ray W. Davis, Montclair avenue, and Mrs. Cora Rader Hood of Pickaway township to the trustee board.

Other trustees, as approved by the general committee, include Harry W. Heffner, Harold J. Bowers, George P. Foresman, William Defenbaugh, Turney Glick, Tom A. Renick, James Yost, Dudley Roth, John G. Boggs, H. W. Campbell, Tom O. Gilliland and Clark Will.

Amendment was made in the constitution permitting addition of the two women to the board.

Much discussion took place on the date for the drive, the allocation and expenditure of money secured. All these questions are expected to be answered at Sunday's conference which begins at 1:30 o'clock.

THREE TOURISTS ESCAPE INJURY IN AUTO CRASH

Three Washington, D. C., vacationers escaped serious injury at 10 a. m. Friday when their automobile slid off Route 23 just north of the Chesapeake and Ohio overhead, four miles north of Circleville. They were Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Young and son, Richard, 7.

Mr. Young, an employee of the U. S. Navy department, told Deputy Sheriff Verne Pontius that he believed the car struck a wet spot in the road. It turned on its top in a ditch.

The Youngs were enroute to northern Ohio to visit relatives. Their car, badly damaged, was towed to Circleville.

All three persons were taken to the office of a Circleville physician for checkups, but none required hospitalization. Mr. Young is 51 and his wife is 43.

SIGNS POINT TO JAPANESE DRIVE AGAINST RUSSIA

LONDON, Aug. 7—Definite evidence that Japan is preparing to attack Russia momentarily was cited today by Dr. George Yeh, London director of the Chinese Ministry of Information.

The Japanese are deploying their forces for a probable attack against the eastern maritime provinces and to resist any Russo-Chinese flanking movement, Yeh said.

General Tomoyuki Yamashita, conqueror of the Philippines and Singapore, now is at Kirin, a good point for attack on Vladivostok, Yeh said, while at least 1,000 Japanese war planes are concentrated in northern Manchukuo for a "blitz" against the eastern end of the trans-Siberian railway, Khabarovsk, Blagoveshchensk and Vladivostok.

The Japanese also are concentrating troops on the southern edge of the Mongolian plateau to prevent Russian forces from striking to the Gulf of Chihli.

He gave her a lift to her home several miles away—then returned to the parked car and removed two wheels, complete with tires.

Junior Exhibits Scheduled For Week Originally Scheduled For P. S.

Pickaway county's Junior Fair, being conducted this year in place of the Pumpkin Show, will likely be October 8 and 9. These dates are during the week originally set for the Pumpkin Show which was postponed because of the war.

Robert G. Colville, Pickaway county Agricultural Society treasurer who is one of the leaders in the Junior Fair campaign, said that persons directing the event will likely meet next week to rent an East Franklin street garage building in which stock owned by 4-H club youngsters of the county will be exhibited.

The event, according to Mr. Colville's plans, will be a big one with all youngsters of the county having an opportunity to participate. In addition to a pig and calf show and sale, a style revue will be conducted, and band concerts will likely be provided.

The Junior Fair was given approval by the Pumpkin Show Society because so many of the county's youngsters had started their 4-H projects before the Pumpkin Show was cancelled.

AMERICANS PUSH AIR ATTACKS ON JAP AIRDROMES

CHUNGKING, Aug. 7—United States flyers, increasing their attacks against Japanese airdromes, yesterday attacked an airdrome near Canton and destroyed at least 10 Japanese planes on the ground. It was officially announced today.

The airdrome was identified as "Tien Ho"—the heavenly stream or milky way—and the Japanese were caught completely by surprise, a communique from Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's headquarters said.

The American bombers were escorted by fighters but the size of the attacking force was not disclosed.

Numerous hits were scored on the airdrome runway. All American planes returned safely.

DEATH DECREE TO BE CARRIED OUT AT ONCE

Roosevelt Approves Verdict Of Military Commission; Execution Before Another Dawn Is Ordered

TWO ESCAPE EXTREME PENALTY

Original Order Was For Immediate Death, But President At Final Minute Grants 24 More Hours Of Life

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—President Roosevelt has approved the verdict of his military commission, sentencing six of the eight Nazi saboteurs to death, it was learned today, and has ordered them executed in the electric chair at the District of Columbia jail before another dawn rises on the horizon.

All arrangements for the greatest execution in the history of the nation's capital has been completed, it was learned, and the six Nazi spies, who invaded the United States on a grandiose sabotage raid, will not live to see another dawn.

The six Nazi invaders, who will be electrocuted, are: John Edward Kerling; Herbert Haupt; Heinrich Harm Heinck; Robert Quirin; Hermann Neubauer and Werner Thiel.

President Roosevelt spared the lives of two of the self-confessed Nazi saboteurs; George John Dasch and Ernest Peter Burger. Both apparently will be given long prison sentences. Dasch, reported to have turned state's evidence against his German colleagues, and Burger, reported to have given the government valuable information, were said to have won a leniency plea from the military commission that tried the eight Nazis, who invaded the United States from German submarines in mid-June.

Electrocution Ordered
It had been generally believed that the spies, if convicted, would either be hung on the gallows or lined up before a firing squad. However, it was definitely learned that the six will be electrocuted and that permission has been obtained from the commissioners of the District of Columbia to execute them in the electric chair in the district's jail.

At the same time, it became known that the six doomed saboteurs are being kept in a row of cells separated from the other two spies. The jail wing where the women's detention cellblock but it is now a small arsenal, guarded by a large number of troops armed with rifles, sub-machine guns, machine guns, hand grenades, and tear gas bombs.

The two spies, who were spared the death penalty, Dasch and Burger, are being kept apart from their six fellow conspirators. According to informed officials at the jail, Dasch and Burger are the two that talked the most at the 18-day trial of the saboteurs before a military commission in Washington. And, they are still talking, it is reported.

Dasch Erratic
Dasch's conversations are pictured as rather disjointed. It is said he rambles from one subject to talk about another totally unrelated topic. He frequently talks about God, and always insists that he did not intend to carry out any sabotage work while in the United States. He says that he is going to get a new start in life under a new name in the United States.

He begs his jailers not to send him back to Germany, claiming that he joined the sabotage ring so he could escape from the Reich. But, at other times, he tells his jailers that he has no regrets.

Under the agreement provision is made for round-trip transportation. The workers will not be subject to compulsory military service and must be paid the same wages as American laborers.

All contracts entered into between employees and employers must be approved by both the United States and Mexican governments.

COLLECTION DAY
Tomorrow will be regular collection day for The Daily Herald carriers. Please have your change ready.

MEX LABORERS TO RELIEVE U. S. FARM PROBLEM

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7—Final arrangements were completed today to dispatch to the United States large numbers of Mexican workers to relieve the farm labor shortage in several states.

Thousands of Mexicans will be permitted to enter the United States to work at agricultural jobs under a new agreement signed between Washington and Mexico City. The majority of the laborers will go to California, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

F.D.R. ASKS U. S. TO WAR AGAINST LOSSES BY FIRE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—In a proclamation calling for united vigilance against wartime destruction by fire, President Roosevelt today designated the week of October 4 as fire prevention week.

"Uncontrolled fire, even in normal times, is a national menace," the proclamation stated. "It kills or disables thousands of our people and destroys a significant portion of our national wealth each year. Today when every machine is being taxed to its fullest productive capacity, when new hands are working with unfamiliar tools, and when agents of our enemies are seeking to hinder us by every possible means, it is essential that destructive fire be brought under stricter control in order that victory may be achieved at the earliest date."

The President called for cooperation of government, state and local agencies, educators, civil groups, press, radio and motion picture industry in helping to promote the fire-prevention campaign.

MEX LABORERS TO RELIEVE U. S. FARM PROBLEM

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7.—Final arrangements were completed today to dispatch to the United States large numbers of Mexican workers to relieve the farm labor shortage in several states.

Thousands of Mexicans will be permitted to enter the United States to work at agricultural jobs under a new agreement signed between Washington and Mexico City. The majority of the laborers will go to California, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

Under the agreement provision is made for round-trip transportation. The workers will not be subject to compulsory military service and must be paid the same wages as American laborers.

All contracts entered into between employees and employers must be approved by both the United States and Mexican governments.

RATION BOOKS PREPARED FOR CLOTHING, SHOES

Fuel Oil Also Included On List, But Immediate Freezing Denied

ACTION IS PRECAUTIONARY

OPA Does Not Wish To Be Caught Unprepared
For Eventuality

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—OPA officials disclosed today that rationing books and forms were being prepared on shoes, clothing and fuel oil, but warned that the preparations were merely a precautionary step.

Paul M. O'Leary, OPA rationing chief, declared that there was nothing "imminent" in the situation.

"We're simply getting ready in advance, if, and when, the war production board should give us instructions to start rationing other items on the consumers durable goods list," he said.

Price administrator Leon Henderson recently testified before a congressional committee that the OPA anticipated having to put into effect approximately 15 new rationing programs.

O'Leary asserted, however, that no new rationing instructions have come over from WPB.

He pointed out that OPA did not want to be caught unprepared and have to institute a new rationing program overnight. In such cases, he explained, stocks of the rationed commodity have to be "frozen" for extended periods and work a hardship on dealers and the public.

O'Leary explained that the OPA had received little advance warning on the rationing of bicycles. The WPB issued its order freezing stocks of bicycles and instructed OPA to immediately start rationing.

Joseph L. Weiner, deputy director of the WPB division of civilian supply, said recently that clothing did not seem to be "a serious problem for the immediate future."

"Stocks on hand, plus the amounts made from available material, appear to be sufficient to meet the demand, presupposing a rational demand," he said.

Some kinds of cloth for particular garments might be limited and more blending will be required, he said.

"We hope that from a style sense that people will continue to be well dressed," Weiner said. "I don't see any need for consumers to become shabby."

Palm oil is used by both soap and steel makers, the latter using it in making tin plate.

Nazis Rip Red Aid

Maj. Gen. Follett Bradley, above, who fled to Russia from Washington to help speed the flow of American supplies to the Soviet Union, admits in a Moscow interview that deliveries of war materials to the hard-pressed Reds are becoming increasingly difficult due to German bombings of northern shipping lanes and the land offensive in the Caucasus.

Williamsport Veterinarian To Enter U. S.
Army As First Lieutenant

Dr. Wells Wilson of Williamsport, a veterinarian, has enlisted in the U. S. Army and has been ordered to report August 15 at Fort Hayes. He will go into service as a first lieutenant.

Dr. Wilson, who has been practicing in Williamsport six years, will serve as a meat and food inspector. His wife and their daughter will continue to live in Williamsport.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brown of Madison township have learned that their son James (Link) Brown is stationed with the U. S. Army somewhere in Ireland. In a cable to his mother on her birthday anniversary, he sent the message: "Hope you had a nice birthday. I am fine. Hope you are all well. Love."

Pickaway county draft received notice Thursday afternoon of enlistment of Earl Weaver, former deputy sheriff, in the U. S. Navy. Weaver entered the service at Cincinnati and was to be shipped immediately to Norfolk, Va. With four years of experience in the Navy, he was to enter with a rank of yeoman, second class, the same rating he held when he left the Navy in 1925.

Private Robert Palm of Circleville has been assigned to Headquarters Section, 1550th Service Unit, Fort Knox, Ky., for Army training.

COURT OUSTS CHARGE AGAINST TWO FARM BOYS

Juvenile Judge Lemuel Weldon Thursday dismissed charges brought against Wilbur Mast, 11, and Jack Miller, 14, of Washington township, for allegedly discharging rifles at the home of Robert McCoy, a neighbor of the Mast family. McCoy had brought the charges. The charges were not sustained. The boys denied the accusation from the time the complaint was filed.

YOUNG WIFE CHARGES NEGLECT; ASKS DIVORCE

Charging neglect, Mrs. Waneta B. Horn, a minor, has filed suit for divorce from Boyd Horn Jr., of Circleville. Since she is under age the action was brought Thursday in Common Pleas court through her father, Sherman Barr.

The couple was married in Russell, Ky., February 18, 1939, and has no children. In addition to divorce and alimony, Mrs. Horn asks that her maiden name be restored to her.

John Pancake, Jr., Met Some Nasty Individuals At Midway, Coral Sea

John Pancake, Jr., is only twenty-one years old, but he has been around a lot. Right now, between spurts of travel, he is resting at the home of his father in Columbus.

John has met some of the nastiest people, he says. Take Midway and Coral sea, for instance. John was there with a lot of other young Americans. They met some Japs and then there was much shooting during which the population ruled by Hirohito was reduced not so much as a healthy young Ohioan might wish, but considerably, nevertheless.

John had a long swim in the Pacific after one of the battles. The sea was covered with oil and here and there was the body of a Jap sailor.

One was an aviator and he didn't look at all as though he had been killed in a crash or shot down.

No, the American sailors do not care much for the Japs, but they would like to see more of them. "And that we will," declared John.

What does it feel like to engage in a major sea battle? Not much different from the regular daily routine practice. One is called to station and over the communications system booms information that a dive bomber is here or a battleship there. Nothing to do then except slam steel in one end of the guns and listen to it depart from the other. Do it fast, though. That is essential. Those sailors are good at handling guns. Everyone except the Japs, it seems, was aware of that fact before Midway and Coral sea. Now, the Japs are in on the know.

"Why, we even surprised ourselves with our accuracy," John said. "And when we did that you can imagine how those Japs must have felt."

"Almost all of us were in our first battle, but I don't think anyone was afraid. We were entirely too busy for that. We just did the things we were supposed to do. Afterward it was different. I was jittery and sleepy. Sleepy most of all. Felt as though I could sleep for a week."

John is not aware of the fact, but he still shows the effect of the strain of those two great naval battles. But that is passing and before he joins the fleet again at the end of his leave he will be in top condition.

What does John think of the Japs? "They are devils," he declared emphatically. "We all know they are devils." No, he is not afraid of them or is any other American in the fleet. They wish to come to grips again at the earliest possible moment. Some good American sailors have been killed and, consequently, there are scores to be settled.

A good kid, John. One of the kind of fighting men doing a great job for the ones at home who are asked to do little more than invest their money in government bonds that pay top rates of interest. Those dollars pay for the training of such youngsters as John, give him a chance for his life and victory in battle, pay for the ships that carry him within striking distance and the shells that bridge the last few miles, give him protection from subs and dive bombers, pave the way for defeat of the enemy.

John appeared at the Rotary meeting Thursday, was introduced and heartily welcomed. He is not a speaker and made no talk other than to say he looks for victory and then answer a few questions. His father was with him, the John Pancake, who for years has operated the sound truck at the Pumpkin Shows.

SHERIFF AIDS HUNT FOR BOY WHO QUITS HOME

Sheriff's office was asked Friday to look for Clarence Rarey, 12, who has been making his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McCreary of Haines Postoffice, Hocking county.

The youngster left his grandparents' home Wednesday, wearing a white shirt, straw hat and overalls, and he was in his bare feet.

The lad has light hair and blue eyes.

He has been busy doing odd jobs around Laurelville and Adelphi, such as mowing lawns and doing other chores.

His grandparents believe that he might have thumbed a ride to Columbus on a truck. His father, Todd Rarey, lives in Columbus, and the lad might be with him, authorities believe.

CRIMINAL COURT DOCKET CLEARED OF OLD CASES

Seeking to clear the Common Pleas court criminal docket of numerous indictments which have already been disposed of in one way or another, Prosecutor George E. Herhardt has filed nolle prosequi entries covering 16 charges. He pointed out that in all 16 cases persons involved had been convicted elsewhere or that plaintiffs had asked that no prosecution be sought.

Cases listed for nolle included Robert Davis, Charles Engle, Paul Hysell, Joseph Domkowski, Charles Allen, John Lamb, C. T. May, Norman Beibik, Francis Knoff and David Rardin, all auto larceny; Ernest Melson, Luther Speakman, failure to provide; Merle Ankrom, operating a motor vehicle when under influence of liquor; Luther Claffey, reckless operation; William Reynolds, burglary and larceny, and W. G. Samson, driving when under influence of liquor.

COUNTY RECEIVES CHECKS AS AUTO LICENSE SHARE

Receipt of several checks from the state treasury distribution of automobile license tag funds is announced by Forrest Short, county auditor, with all subdivisions of the county sharing.

Among the amounts were $4,175.50 for the county and $612.50 for corporations from the final distribution of 1941 tag money; $10,701.50 for the county and $1,862.50 for corporations from the second advance distribution of money received from 1942 tags, and $3,000 to the county out of the five percent motor vehicle tag equalization fund.

FINE SUSPENDED

Mayor Ben H. Gordon fined James G. Lowery, Clinton street, $10 and costs and suspended the penalty after Lowery admitted permitting a minor to drive his automobile without an operator's permit. The mayor pointed out that Lowery, who has never been in trouble, is home now on furlough after being accepted for Army training. Because of this fact, he said, he suspended the fine and costs. Lowery's companion, Miss Alberta Swift, 16, is scheduled for juvenile court hearing for driving a car without having a license.

RUSS RETREAT AS BIG TANKS BLAST GATEWAY

Nazis Halted Only Briefly By Reserves Thrown In By Timoshenko

oppressive heat and the glaring sun of the treeless steppes. Northeast of Kotelnikov, the enemy advance was slowed. But quick Nazi tank thrusts assisted by constant aerial bombardment made it increasingly difficult for the Soviets to stabilize their defense lines.

The Germans are using preponderantly mechanized units in this sector, winging out in wide arcs and concentrating their tanks only when a weak spot is found. These tactics have resulted in great German successes, as massed mechanized units are wedged through the Soviet defenses, compelling Russian withdrawals to straighten the lines.

A gathering of allied diplomats in the Soviet capital was linked with reports of some immediate action by the United Nations to relieve the terrible strain on the weary forces of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko.

No Hint of Plans

There was no hint of what allied plans were to be discussed. Another meeting, with ominous potentialities for the United Nations, got under way in Bombay as the committee of the all India national congress party gathered in a circus-like atmosphere to put through Mohandas K. Gandhi's plan to force Indian independence.

The first action of the day was by the working committee which authorized the congress president, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, to write President Roosevelt, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to Great Britain, enlisting their support for India's plea for independence.

There was no indication that the congress had retreated from its determination to launch a nationwide civil disobedience program if its demands are not met. In Washington it was believed that President Roosevelt would not intervene in the situation unless asked to do so by the British government.

The RAF was over Germany for the third successive night, raiding towns in the Rhenish industrial area. Berlin admitted some damage. The Luftwaffe countered with sharp raids on England and Scotland, and German claims said Edinburgh and Cambridge had been attacked.

In the southwest Pacific successful allied raids were made on enemy bases at Lae and Salamaua. The Japanese offered no resistance. Land fighting in the Kokoda area of New Guinea was reported at a virtual standstill.

Born While Dad Fought Japs

Shown holding her baby boy is Mrs. Shirley Root Reid of New Haven, Conn. When the baby was born, his dad, Lieut. Ernest Leroy Reid, was fighting off a formation of Jap fighter planes over the New Guinea jungle, piloting a flying fortress. The Reids were married in June, 1941. On December 7, Reid landed in Pearl Harbor, right in the midst of the Jap sneak attack. Since then he has moved on to Australia.

Wife Fatally Beaten

Charged with beating his wife, Gertrude, to death after she returned home from a round of night clubs, Rodney Hake, 26, a bulldozer operator, is pictured in San Francisco jail. Only witness to the fatal beating was Hake's six-year-old daughter.

TIN GATHERED FOR U. S. GIVES VEGA HEADACHE

Roger Vega, manager of the Chakeras Grand theatre, has a problem on his hands, and he knows not what to do with it.

About 700 of the community's youngsters crowded in to his theatre Thursday afternoon to enjoy a picture show, and all that it cost each of them was five tin cans, well flattened and cleaned.

The youngsters had a big time as guests of the theatre, and the Grand was a happy host.

Now Roger has the tin cans, about 3,500 of them in round numbers, and he doesn't know what to do with them.

County salvage organization has had no instructions concerning tin can salvage. There is no place to take them, so Vega is stuck with them. It's likely that he'll keep them somewhere around the theatre until salvage officials ask for them.

Anyway 700 youngsters had a good time, and Roger got a kick out of seeing the boys and girls happy.

SEVERSKY SAYS BATTLESHIP OF AIR ARE NEEDED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7—Major Alexander De Seversky, former Russian war ace, advocated today construction of great "air battleships" which could fly non-stop from San Francisco to Japan and return. He declared:

"We should start immediately building 150-ton bombers that would be veritable 'battleships' and capable of flying with thousands of tons of TNT to Japan and back."

QUEEN RESTING AT WHITE HOUSE BEFORE SEA TRIP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Queen Wilhelmina, 61-year-old ruler of the Netherlands, prepared to start the long return trip back to London today after a state visit to Washington during which she heard President Roosevelt predict that Holland once again would win its freedom and independence.

Her majesty was scheduled to be a guest at President Roosevelt's press conference today, and then planned to spend a quiet day at the White House until she starts the trip back to England where her government in exile is still directing Netherlands effort in the war.

Queen Wilhelmina, the first reigning queen ever to hold a press conference in Washington, said that "my people have been overwhelmed by force but they have never submitted nor will they ever submit."

The queen also spent a memorable day in addressing the American Congress, visiting the Washington Navy yard where the President presented her with a sub-chaser for the Holland navy, and later, amid impressive and colorful ceremonies, laid wreaths on the tombs of George Washington and the unknown soldier.

FARM BOARDS TO HEAR TALKS ON C OF C PROGRAM

Lee Anderson and Elwood Butler, co-chairmen of the agricultural committee of Fairfield county, are calling a district meeting of the agriculture committees in Fairfield, Hocking, Perry and Pickaway counties. The district councilors of these counties, as well as other citizens of this district, have also been invited to attend.

The meeting will be held in the ball room of the Lancaster hotel in Lancaster, at 8 p. m., Tuesday. This meeting will be of vital importance both to farmers and businessmen throughout this district.

Brooks Burnside, agricultural agent of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce will explain in detail the agricultural program of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. He will also distribute the manual of the foregoing program.

guards that he wants to go back to Germany so he can fight Hitler.

Burger also converses freely but more rationally with his guards. The other six are sullen and troops guarding them have been ordered to take extraordinary precautions to prevent them from turning on Dasch and Burger and attempting to kill them.

The President originally ordered them executed before dawn this morning but at the last minute granted them another 24 hours of life.

Lights in the cells of the saboteurs were kept burning throughout the night for the first time. An unarmed soldier was placed in each cell with each saboteur to prevent the spies from making any attempt to commit suicide and cheat justice.

The saboteurs smoked endless chains of cigarettes and, finally, after their supply ran out they were given packages of loose smoking tobacco so that they could make their own.

The prisoners already have been accorded the opportunity to receive the last rites of the churches to which they belong. Six chaplains were sent to the district jail to offer them spiritual advice in their last hours.

With the President's action in approving the sentence of the military commission, an order was issued yesterday afternoon to troops to start preparing the spies for their deaths at 8:30 p. m. The execution was scheduled for shortly after midnight and before dawn. The preparations were to have started at the early hour of 8:30 p. m., in order to give the prisoners ample time to receive spiritual consolation from the chaplains and eat a last meal.

Execution Delayed

However, the President decided to delay the executions for 24 hours presumably so he could announce the fate of the saboteurs before the sentences are executed.

The eight spies were nabbed by the FBI between June 20 and June 27, shortly after they landed on Long Island and Florida shores from Nazi submarines. On July 2, the President issued a proclamation setting up a military commission of seven generals to try the saboteurs. The commission heard evidence, including confessions for all eight spies, for 18 days and then took two days to reach its finding and verdict.

It sent its findings to the President Monday, and on Tuesday Mr. Roosevelt announced that he would take two or three days to reach a conclusion. The three-day period expired today. Mr. Roosevelt was the final court of review, and the United States supreme court, in a special session, upheld his wartime powers to determine the fate of the saboteurs.

Cells Kept Lighted

The six doomed Nazis spent their last night on earth in lighted cells within the newly constructed women's wing of the district jail. If they looked out their ample windows, they saw a starry sky during the early part of the night and after that, a cloud-studded canopy. They had a cool last night—with dew cascading over the lawns, bushes and fields that surround the jail.

On this August morn, their last dawn came early—before 6 a. m. eastern war time. Hundreds of other cells were lighted before the pre-dawn gloom gave way to the light of the rising sun. But the condemned Nazis were so closely guarded they knew nothing about their fellow prisoners in the huge jail. . . nor what was happening in the outside world.

crew included: co-pilot Lieut. Clyde B. Walker, Jr., of Portland, Ore.; navigator Lieut. Harry W. Smith of Bangor, Me.; bombardier Sergt. C. B. Phillips of Oneida, Tenn.; engineer Sergt. H. R. Inman of Scranton, Pa.; assistant engineer Corp. R. A. Fries of Chambersburg, Pa.; radioman Corp. R. L. Holliday of Milwaukee; assistant radioman Corp. J. D. Lillis of Williamsburg, Iowa; gunner Sergt. J. T. Sanford of Long Island, N. Y.; and photographer Sergt. E. H. Catch of New Bedford, Mass.

The one-sided character of the battle was emphasized by the fact that the American bomber was hit only twice.

After flying blind for four hours through heavy clouds, the weather cleared suddenly as the flying fortress approached Wake. Apparently the Japanese had less than ten minutes warning, for the fighters did not take off until the American plane came into view.

The shore batteries sent up a terrific barrage, but the fortress held firmly to its course while the crew carried out their mission. The job was completed just as the Japanese fighters came level with the American plane.

Enemy Ships Spread

Then the battle began. The enemy ships spread out and attacked from all angles as the fortress crew manned the gun stations. One zero dived within 15 feet of the cockpit and paid dearly for its audacity. It was blasted into the sea by the guns handled by Lieut. Smith and Sergt. Phillips.

"The zero zoomed in ahead of us and started a dive from 800 yards," said Lieut. Smith. "As it came in head-on we opened fire. The gasoline tank burst into flames and the zero went into a spin and plunged into the sea."

Then another zero, approaching on the fortress' tail, maneuvered in lazy figure eights. But it came too close and was knocked out of action by Sergt. Sanford who was operating the rear gun-turret.

"As the shells poured into her the zero seemed to pause, then slid back and fluttered easily down like a falling leaf until it splashed into the ocean," Sanford recounted.

One For Milwaukee

Sergt. Holliday scored one for Milwaukee when he literally sawed off the wing of one of the German type ships.

"It came in so close I couldn't use my sights, so I fired tracers at it," Holliday said. "They ploughed through the wing and severed it."

The fourth victim was credited to Sergt. Catch, the photographer, who doubles as a gunner. His stream of bullets caught a zero at a distance of 200 yards and sent it spinning down to the sea.

The comparatively flimsy construction of the Japanese planes caused them to disintegrate when heavily hit, the American crew reported. They credited their one-sided victory to the heavy fire-power of the flying fortress which enabled them to throw the enemy off stride and completely upset the aim of the Japanese pilots.

Heavy Jap Armament

The Japanese ships are heavily armed with machine guns and cannons, but the pilot has little protection. This, the American airmen believe, makes them nervous and inaccurate, particularly when they come up against the American fortress which bristles with guns commanding approaches from any direction.

"It wasn't fun, exactly," said Major Glober. "The Japs are not superior. We underrated them for a long time, but we don't overrate them now."

"They bored in on us in the bravest fashion, heedless of the danger. But they were easy to shoot down."

"Our crew carried on with splendid team work. Everything went perfectly throughout the flight. We have been flying together for seven months. That sort of training pays off in emergencies."

U. N. AVIATORS BLAST JAPANESE IN NEW GUINEA

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Aug. 7—Successful attacks by United Nations fliers against Japanese bases at Lae and Salamaua, in northeast New Guinea, were announced today in a communique.

The allied bombers blasted enemy-held airfield runways and dispersal areas, the communique said. The Japanese failed to attempt an interception of the allied planes and all the craft returned safely to their base.

In the Gona and Buna area, where the Japanese have seized bases on New Guinea's Papua coast, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said, the situation has become static.

"Only light ground forces are involved with reconnaissance and security detachments," the communique said.

Reports reaching headquarters said that in patrol skirmishes in the vicinity of Oivi and Kokoda, along the mountain road leading from Buna to Port Moresby, show that the Japanese have been employing outflanking tactics similar to those used in Malaya and Burma. These tactics enabled the Japs to reach Kokoda, 60 miles from Moresby, because of their numerical superiority, it was said.

OPEN LETTERS

TO CITIZENS

FOLK: Although interest has been at a low pitch throughout the primary campaign, Pickaway county will have a primary election next Tuesday which should draw many hundreds of persons to the polls. There are several contests, all of which are important, for the various county offices at stake, and a long slate of state candidates should also be considered. Despite the war, the election deserves your attention. It has often been said that too many persons take too little interest in primary elections, the result being that the wrong persons at times get on the general election slate. If all of us would give the primary the attention it deserves we would be better represented. Polls open at 6:30 in the morning and close 12 hours later. Surely, in that span of time you can find a few minutes for casting your ballot. CIRCUIITER.

TO CITY OFFICIALS

MEN: A plea was voiced in council meeting the other evening which deserves attention, and now. Unless some action is taken on salary increases for men of the police force and fire department I fear that several of the more valuable members of the two corps will be looking for work in other fields. And, with their training, it will not be difficult for them to get jobs. They are underpaid, and there isn't much question about that, but where money will come from to boost their salaries is something you must work out. I hope that at your meeting next Wednesday evening when a committee session will be held that you will get together in a wholehearted discussion of the situation and endeavor to solve some of the problems surrounding it. CIRCUIITER.

TO ABOUT EVERY ONE

ALL: There are few persons in our community who have not at one time or another had a photograph of one sort or another. And there are few of you who do not have old records, some broken and some as good as new, hidden away in corners of your homes. Do you know that there is a definite need for these records today? Do you know that Boy Scouts will be making a house-to-house canvass Saturday in an effort to add hundreds of records to the pile being gathered by

Howard Hall post, American Legion? If you have a few minutes' time why don't you try to find these old records and get them in a pile so the lads seeking them can carry them to record headquarters. The records are being re-processed and put into use again for boys of the armed services. Wouldn't you like to have a role in helping to entertain these boys? If no one comes to your home to collect them you can deliver your records to The Daily Herald office, as many other persons have done, and they will reach the proper persons. CIRCUIITER.

TO LAW OFFICERS

AUTHORITIES: I was very pleased the other day to learn that Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon and Sheriff Charles Radcliff had pledged their cooperation to Lt.-Col. O. M. Baldinger of the Lockbourne air base in the matter of law enforcement. The colonel has folk in Franklin county running in circles, as they should be in some instances, and we don't want to force him to send his men down here to take charge of things. Our reputation as a law-abiding community is splendid, but, with elements of unsavory repute being forced out of Columbus, they may seek havens in Circleville and Pickaway county. I hope that you fellows do your best to keep things on an even keel here, so that no drastic restrictions on civilian life will be necessary. CIRCUIITER.

CIRCUIITER

TO SCHOOL BOARD

OFFICIALS: By all means you should do everything possible to assure a course in pre-flight aeronautics for junior and senior students of the high school. Your board has put its approval on the question, but a problem remains since you do not know who will take a special course at Ohio State university to prepare for teaching the important subject this Fall. You should be certain that some member of the faculty takes the course, even if it means paying his or her expenses during the training. More and more, Uncle Sam is going to be asking schools to teach subjects he believes should be taught, and this is the first. It is very important, at least to my way of thinking, that pupils of the upper two classes be given this opportunity to learn fundamentals of this important topic. CIRCUIITER.

CIRCUIITER

TO 4-H CLUB FOLK

YOUNGSTERS: To Nancy Miller, Sara Jane Rector, Paul Brobst and Joe Hedges go this week's orchids for their selection to represent 4-H clubs of the county at the annual Camp Ohio conservation week program starting Sunday. You four have been named outstanding in your field of endeavor and you deserve the right to enjoy the popular camp. A well-planned program of entertainment will be provided for you, and a gala week, one that will be educational as well as entertaining, is before you. The fact that you have been chosen to attend the camp does not mean that you should believe you have realized the peak of success in 4-H club work. It should spur you to new ideals, and it should make some other 4-H club youngsters work hard for the honor a year from now. The camp is a fine thing, and your selection to attend it is excellent. Flight Surgeon Must Have Special Training

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE STATEMENT that probably the United States will need 20,000 medical officers trained in aviation medicine within a short time emphasizes not only the importance of the Air Force in this war, but also points to an entirely new medical specialty. For the flight surgeon must be intensively trained for his work.

The important subjects for the flight surgeon are anoxia, or reduced air pressure and changes in air pressure, safety in crashes and equilibrium training. The last is practically solved. By the Barany test it is possible to pick out men who are normal so far as their equilibrium apparatus is concerned, and it is possible to train and condition men so they can stand changes of posture and rocking far beyond what any average untrained person can take. Fascinating Subject

Anoxia has proved a fascinating subject. For practical purposes, it is to all intents and purposes solved, but in the solving of it many very curious and hitherto unsuspected facts have been brought into the field of research. Medical science has long been interested in such things as mountain sickness and caisson disease, or diver's disease—the conditions which depend upon differences in air and oxygen pressure. Divers who submerge and get under high pressure must be brought out of it gradually or else they get "the bends" (their own word for it), which consists of very painful cramps of the muscles. These bends are caused by the escape of bubbles of nitrogen into the muscles.

With the increase in altitude attainment that the modern airplane provides, this condition of "the bends" began to occur in airplane pilots. It is easy to understand why it would: it is simply the diver's disease in reverse. The diver goes from high pressure to our normal atmosphere; the aviator goes from normal to rarefied atmosphere. The same physical laws apply.

Affects Adrenal Glands

What part of the body responds first to a shift in oxygen pressure? Unexpectedly and curiously, modern research has found that the adrenal glands are the ones first affected. Two laboratory workers, Armstrong and Heim, found that if they exposed rabbits to an atmosphere equivalent to 18,000 feet for four hours, the adrenal glands were swollen one-third over normal size. Over-fatigued pilots, especially those subjected to high altitude missions, develop symptoms strikingly like what we have long known to be those of degeneration of the adrenal glands (Addison's disease).

It is possible to teach pilots how to be safe in crashes. This began with the study of a curious gentleman who became interested in non-fatal suicide leaps from high buildings. Investigating a series of these cases, he found that in the non-fatal leap the victim usually landed flat on his stomach or back, so that the long bones or the head was not driven into the trunk. The lesson for pilots is obvious.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. D.: If one suffered with chronic bronchitis and almost continuous coughs and colds for the past 20 years and then developed a chronic sinus disease, would this sinus infection be the result of the chronic bronchitis?

Answer: Sinus infection and chronic bronchitis almost invariably go together, but in my experience the sinus disease causes the bronchitis.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Miss Grace Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hoffman of Walnut township, returned after a trip to New York City and Washington, D. C. She was one of 12 pupils who accompanied their teacher, Mrs. Charlotte Gamble, accordion instructor, of Columbus on this trip.

Meeker Terwilliger, attorney, was named for the chairmanship of the committee in charge of Circleville's celebration of the 150th anniversary of the settlement of the Northwest Territory.

Despite a light rain, over 1,000 persons attended the annual Clarksburg hunt day celebration in the E. L. Hurst grove.

10 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gatrell, Miss Evelyn Gatrell, Miss Lillian Young and Miss Elizabeth Tolbert left for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warner and James Gatrell at Kingsport, Tenn.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Renick W. Dunlap, Mrs. Dunlap and their daughter, Mary, returned to Washington, D. C. after a three-week cruise in the Caribbean sea. The Dunlap family home was near Kingsport.

William Compton, 69, West Main street, narrowly escaped death when he apparently lost his footing and fell backwards to the ground from the top of a 25-foot straw-rick in the yard of the Container Corporation of America.

25 YEARS AGO

Herbert F. Martell, formerly of Circleville and brother of Mrs. L. C. Hammel and Mrs. Lewis Fohl, was in Washington, D. C., where he was employed by the government as expert motor tester in the aviation corps.

Miss Mary Robbins, soprano soloist, was given highest praise for her numbers in an excellent program presented by the Municipal band of Dallas, Tex., at an evening concert in Oak Lawn Park. She was a former Circleville girl.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, August 7

A DISCONCERTING and difficult day, with dangers and sudden issues of an unpredictable nature, is read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. There may be much gained by travel, agencies, communications as well as writings, publicity, advertising and promotional enterprises, but these should be pursued with equanimity and restraint and not jeopardized by violent, erratic or tempestuous acts. The emotional urges may impel to bursting all bonds of reason and common sense, and cause grief and regrets if not accidents. With care and discretion there might be pleasurable as well as profitable experiences.

MAMMOTH FISH FRY

Mark's Wife by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER ONE

SHE HAD BEEN writing for more than two hours and now her fingers, chilled and cramped, refused to hold the pen. She rubbed her hands together to warm them and saw how white and incompetent the unrelieved black of her long sleeves made them appear. She sighed softly and the sound made her conscious of other small sounds in the lonely quiet of the chilly room: a mouse in the old walls, the lip of a dying fire in the hearth, a lick of a puppy tongue against a puppy paw, the ticking of a clock marking the passing of this first night alone.

It was after ten and she couldn't remember if she had eaten anything since breakfast.

She rose and pushed away from her the papers that were covered with columns of figures. She moved them toward the back of the desk where Mark's uncovered typewriter stood. She hadn't even learned to use that. There would be no one to use it now. She drew a black cover over its worn keys.

With the puppy at her heels she went into the kitchen, avoiding a glance at the closed door of the room from which they had taken Mark that afternoon. The windows were open in there to let out the heavy scent of the flowers, and the cold November air came out from under the door.

It was cold in the kitchen, but when she turned on the light and put the kettle on to boil, she saw things on the table and the warmth of gratitude flowed into her. She stood looking down at the gifts that had been brought to her, a loaf of home-baked bread, a small roasted chicken and other delicacies. Moisture came into her tired eyes. They had been kind in so many ways, those neighbors to whom she had so long been a stranger because Mark...

But she mustn't think of that now. Mark had been good and kind. No, Mark had not been kind; she had to say that to herself, knowing that the quality of kindness is the reflection of an inner warmth, and Mark had been cold.

She cut slices of the bread and poured a cup of strong tea hungrily, but when she had eaten and drunk a little, she pushed the plate away from her, conscious of a greater hunger that had always been a part of her.

Had Mark loved her? She had never known; she never, because he was always remote, had asked him. Perhaps she had been afraid and that was why she had accepted his physical presence, the aspect of ONENESS as enough to make their marriage what a marriage should be. For five years she had been his wife, the wife, she hoped, he'd wanted. Anxiously she searched her memory, going back through the first months when Mark had been the brilliant political reporter on the Times, and on through the years after he'd quit to write his book and articles that brought in meager returns, and they'd come to South Wintridge to buy this old house and settle down, but never to be a part of the small community she'd loved from the beginning.

She could remember how eagerly she had hoped to find homely, simple identification with other women in the little town, the deep shared interests of other women like herself. But Mark would not have understood. He had wanted none of them. "Folksey things," he called them. So she had put her wants aside to live in his shadow. She wondered if he knew, now that he was gone.

She washed her cup and saucer and put the food away. Then she laid out a tray with Sonny's little mug and spoon and plate for the morning.

The cocker's big brown eyes sent her a pleading message. "You want to go out, don't you, Paddy?" she said. Her own voice startled her in the silence.

The puppy bounded into the hall and she followed, opening the door wide. She stood there for a full minute, silhouetted against the light. With her head up, she breathed deeply of the cold refreshing air. Then she turned quickly and went in, almost slamming the door back of her as if to keep out the cold and the world outside, to return to the safe harbor of her walls.

Half a block away, across the tree-lined green that separated the two sides of Maple street, Tony Bradshaw, coming from a late call at Judge Bleeker's house, had seen the square of light and her silhouetted figure. A quick shaft of feeling went straight from his eyes to his heart and he paused for a moment to label something he had seen in the brief glimpse of her and he said to himself, "It's gal-lan-ty!"

Without stopping to leave his doctor's bag in the car at the curb, he hurried, his long legs half running, across the green and up the worn steps of the broad veranda of her house. He lifted the knocker and let it fall gently.

Then he waited, with his senses quickening, hearing her quick footsteps on the bare boards of the hall before she opened the door. "Oh, Tony! It's you! How good of you to come!" Her voice was full and low.

For a moment he didn't seem to know what to say. "I've been paying some calls in the neighborhood. Thought maybe you might need something to make you sleep."

They both looked at his black doctor's bag.

Barbara thought, "How self-conscious I've become already, wondering what the neighbors will think of a man coming to see me at this hour. I'm glad he brought his bag."

Aloud she said, "That's very thoughtful, Tony, but I shan't need anything."

"Furnace need looking after... or anything like that?" She smiled at him then. "I'm a pretty good man of the house..."

He followed her into the low-ceilinged living room and dropped his hat and coat on a chair. She sat in the rocker where he had first seen her. He sat down across from her. No ready words came to his lips because she looked so pen-sive, so still, and for the first time since he'd known her, woe-begone. It was her tremendous vitality, a glowing quality about her that had first drawn him to her, but now that, too, was cloaked in the plain black garb that made her young maturity seem younger than her 27 years.

Young Dr. Bradshaw wanted to kneel beside her and put his arms around her still figure.

She said, "How's Mrs. Bleeker?"

"Fine," he said heartily. "Much too fine. I'm afraid she's going to get better in a hurry."

Barbara Wister gave him a maternal, understanding smile. "Poor Tony! You're too good a doctor. All your patients get well in a hurry."

For a moment they both thought of Mark Wister whom he had not been able to save. A bad cold and then quick pneumonia.

"Oh, I'll catch on to the knack of keeping 'em lingering some day. Just give me time," he said it hastily, wishing he could find something to say to wipe the bleak look off her face.

Tony Bradshaw got an old pipe and pouch out of his pocket. "There's a quality in medicine that neither schools nor city practice can give a medico," he said. "I'll find it here. When you know what makes a man sick, you know more about his trouble than you do when you isolate his germ. It's an angle I'm interested in. Mechanics aren't enough for me. You get more than mechanics in a place like this."

She leaned forward, with her hands clasped around her knees and, looking into the fire, she said in strangely tense tones, "I like small towns, too, Tony."

"Do you, Barbara?" His voice was low. "Somehow that surprises me." He hadn't thought about it, but now he thought that she was like a glowing hibiscus in an old-fashioned garden; exotic and somehow not belonging. He was thinking and speaking, half to himself, "I don't really know anything about you."

Her fleeting smile had a touch of irony in it, but her voice was gentle:

"Only what most of the town knows, Tony? That I was an actress and the Wisters are 'queer people'?"

WORLD AT A GLANCE

THE AXIS countries' internal morale is pretty high, according to recently arrived Americans who, after periods of internment in these various totalitarian jurisdictions, finally were traded off by 'em to us, in return for corresponding numbers of their subjects, previously interned here.

Probably this Axis good cheer is partly due to the fact that the dictatorial-ly ruled trio of nationalities have been fairly well satisfied with their luck thus far. It appears also, however, that the successes they've scored up to date have been greatly exaggerated to them, whereas news that isn't so favorable is strictly suppressed.

One story that did get out, though, at least in Japan, was the account of Jimmy Doolittle's air bombing raid over several of Nippon's leading cities.

The censor kept it out of print, to be sure, but so much damage was done that great numbers of folk saw and talked about it among themselves. In fact, some observers are of the opinion that the performance made a deeper impression than it would have done if it hadn't been so complete a surprise. It was so exactly in unmistakably convincing contradiction of all the gloomy official reports on which the government had been feeding its public that the Japs have turned a bit skeptical of the sources of information they're supposed to rely on.

Made to Order

Just why other American aviators haven't been more prompt to follow up Jimmy Doolittle's example isn't quite clear.

Japan simply was created to be air-raided. Not to exceed 1 per cent of its architecture consists of anything but bamboo sticks, paper walls and pasteboard roofs, with a little mullage to hold 'em together.

Bombers are described as having knocked buildings in such cities as Cologne and Hamburg into "heaps of rubble," to employ the popular reportorial expression. But to transform one of those substantial German edifices into rubble requires a direct hit. Another one, across the street, may not have anything more than its windows broken. And even rubble can be scooped up and more or less reassembled.

But a Jap shack? Drop a lighted match on it and it'll blaze up to beat a bonfire, which'll spread all over the neighborhood in jig time.

Putting out a fire in Nippon is a matter of tearing down everything within miles around the scene of the conflagration. No rubble's left. Not even kindling wood remains. It's consumed as fast as the blaze spreads. "Scorched earth" has nothing on it.

Following about a dozen intensive Yankee raids there can be nothing left, as much as a foot high, for the Mikado's fleet to come home to. So how can it rest and get back into action?

Except the merest primitive codgie, every Jap knows all this.

OPEN LETTERS
TO CITIZENS
FOLK: Although interest has been at a low pitch throughout the primary campaign, Pickaway county will have a primary election next Tuesday which should draw many hundreds of persons to the polls. There are several contests, all of which are important, for the various county offices at stake, and a long slate of state candidates should also be considered. Despite the war, the election deserves your attention. It has often been said that too many persons take too little interest in primary elections, the result being that the wrong persons at times get on the general election slate. If all of us would give the primary the attention it deserves we would be better represented. Polls open at 6:30 in the morning and close 12 hours later. Surely, in that span of time you can find a few minutes for casting your ballot.
CIRCUITEER.

TO CITY OFFICIALS
MEN: A plea was voiced in council meeting the other evening which deserves attention, and now. Unless some action is taken on salary increases for men of the police force and fire department I fear that several of the more valuable members of the two corps will be looking for work in other fields. And, with their training, it will not be difficult for them to get jobs. They are underpaid, and there isn't much question about that, but where money will come from to boost their salaries is something you must work out. I hope that at your meeting next Wednesday evening when a committee session will be held that you will get together in a wholehearted discussion of the situation and endeavor to solve some of the problems surrounding it.
CIRCUITEER.

TO ABOUT EVERY ONE
ALL: There are few persons in our community who have not at one time or another had a photograph of one sort or another. And there are few of you who do not have old records, some broken and some as good as new, hidden away in corners of your homes. Do you know that there is a definite need for these records today? Do you know that Boy Scouts will be making a house-to-house canvass Saturday in an effort to add hundreds of records to the pile being gathered by

Howard Hall post, American Legion? If you have a few minutes' time why don't you try to find these old records and get them in a pile so the lads seeking them can carry them to record headquarters. The records are being re-processed and put into use again for boys of the armed services. Wouldn't you like to have a role in helping to entertain these boys? If no one comes to your home to collect them you can deliver your records to The Daily Herald office, as many other persons have done, and they will reach the proper persons.
CIRCUITEER.

TO LAW OFFICERS
AUTHORITIES: I was very pleased the other day to learn that Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon and Sheriff Charles Radcliff had pledged their cooperation to Lt.-Col. O. M. Baldinger of the Lockbourne air base in the matter of law enforcement. The colonel has folk in Franklin county running in circles, as they should be in some instances, and we don't want to force him to send his men down here to take charge of things. Our reputation as a law-abiding community is splendid, but, with elements of unsavory repute being forced out of Columbus, they may seek havens in Circleville and Pickaway county. I hope that you fellows do your best to keep things on an even keel here, so that no drastic restrictions on civilian life will be necessary.
CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL BOARD
OFFICIALS: By all means you should do everything possible to assure a course in pre-flight aeronautics for junior and senior students of the high school. Your board has put its approval on the question, but a problem remains since you do not know who will take a special course at Ohio State university to prepare for teaching the important subject this Fall. You should be certain that some member of the faculty takes the course, even if it means paying his or her expenses during the training. More and more, Uncle Sam is going to be asking schools to teach subjects he believes should be taught, and this is the first. It is very important, at least to my way of thinking, that pupils of the upper two classes be given this opportunity to learn fundamentals of this important topic.
CIRCUITEER.

TO 4-H CLUB FOLK
YOUNGSTERS: To Nancy Miller, Sara Jane Rector, Paul Brobst and Joe Hedges go this week's orchids for their selection to represent 4-H clubs of the county at the annual Camp Ohio conservation week program starting Sunday. You four have been named outstanding in your field of endeavor and you deserve the right to enjoy the popular camp. A well-planned program of entertainment will be provided for you, and a gala week, one that will be educational as well as entertaining, is before you. The fact that you have been chosen to attend the camp does not mean that you should believe you have realized the peak of success in 4-H club work. It should spur you to new ideals, and it should make some other 4-H club youngsters work hard for the honor a year from now. The camp is a fine thing, and your selection to attend it is excellent.

WORLD AT A GLANCE —By— Charles F. Stewart

sources of information they're supposed to rely on.

Made to Order

Just why other American aviators haven't been more prompt to follow up Jimmy Doolittle's example isn't quite clear.

Japan simply was created to be air raided. Not to exceed 1 per cent of its architecture consists of anything but bamboo sticks, paper walls and pasteboard roofs, with a little muckilage to hold 'em together.

Bombers are described as having knocked buildings in such cities as Cologne and Hamburg into "heaps of rubble," to employ the popular reportorial expression. But to transform one of those substantial German edifices into rubble requires a direct hit. Another one, across the street, may not have anything more than its windows broken. And even rubble can be scooped up and more or less reassembled.

But a Jap shack? Drop a lighted match on it and it'll blaze up to beat a bonfire, which'll spread all over the neighborhood in jig time.

Putting out a fire in Nippon is a matter of tearing down everything within miles around the scene of the conflagration. No rubble's left. Not even kindling wood remains. It's consumed as fast as the blaze spreads. "Scorched earth" has nothing on it.

Following about a dozen intensive Yankee raids there can be nothing left, as much as a foot high, for the Mikado's fleet to come home to. So how can it rest and get back into action?

Except the merest primitive cooie, every Jap knows all this.

Either he's a crazy Samurai, perfectly willing to commit suicide (and why not help him to do it?) or his morale will crack as soon as he realizes what he's up against.

China's been fighting 'em for five years without winning, but China's entirely without equipment. The Chinese can literally swamp 'em, if we give 'em the stuff to do it with. Or, we can do it, from the Aleutians, for instance, if we get busy. Only, nobody's started it but Jimmy Doolittle.

I've lived in Japan and know what I'm talking about.

It Hits Morale

Well, now, as previously remarked, that Doolittle raid threw a bad scare into the Japs. Their morale's considerably disorganized. How about the remaining Axis countries, as they begin to encounter reverses? Italy ought to flatten out quite promptly. The Germans are harder boiled. The Italians aren't hard boiled at all. The Japs have nothing but a hard boiled yolk to their egg.

It would seem as if that yolk was the nub to be attended to.

My own dope, as a military strategist, is to raid Japan until the Sumari's finished. Then let Italy over-boil and disintegrate into mere goo—easily edible by the democratic nations.

I'd bet it would have a demoralizing effect on Germany.

Jimmy Doolittle's campaign strikes me as being the crux of the pending conflict.

It'll need to be chased up, of course. Its initial penetration is what I'm talking about.

The necessity for the obliteration of those Japs is my thesis.

DIET AND HEALTH
Flight Surgeon Must Have Special Training

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE STATEMENT that probably the United States will need 20,000 medical officers trained in aviation medicine within a short time emphasizes not only the importance of the Air Force in this war, but also points to an entirely new medical specialty. For the flight surgeon must be intensively trained for his work.

The important subjects for the flight surgeon are anoxia, or reduced air pressure and changes in air pressure, safety in crashes and equilibrium training. The last is practically solved. By the Barany test it is possible to pick out men who are normal so far as their equilibrium apparatus is concerned, and it is possible to train and condition men so they can stand changes of posture and rocking far beyond what any average untrained person can take.

Fascinating Subject

Anoxia has proved a fascinating subject. For practical purposes, it is to all intents and purposes solved, but in the solving of it many very curious and hitherto unsuspected facts have been brought into the field of research.

Medical science has long been interested in such things as mountain sickness and caisson disease, or diver's disease—the conditions which depend upon differences in air and oxygen pressure. Divers who submerge and get under high pressure must be brought out of it gradually or else they get "the bends" (their own word for it), which consists of very painful cramps of the muscles. These bends are caused by the escape of bubbles of nitrogen into the muscles.

With the increase in altitude attainment that the modern airplane provides, this condition of "the bends" began to occur in airplane pilots. It is easy to understand why it would: it is simply the diver's disease in reverse. The diver goes from high pressure to our normal atmosphere; the aviator goes from normal to rarefied atmosphere. The same physical laws apply.

Affects Adrenal Glands

What part of the body responds first to a shift in oxygen pressure? Unexpectedly and curiously, modern research has found that the adrenal glands are the ones first affected. Two laboratory workers, Armstrong and Heim, found that if they exposed rabbits to an atmosphere equivalent to 18,000 feet for four hours, the adrenal glands were swollen one-third over normal size. Over-fatigued pilots, especially those subjected to high altitude missions, develop symptoms strikingly like what we have long known to be those of degeneration of the adrenal glands (Addison's disease).

It is possible to teach pilots how to be safe in crashes. This began with the study of a curious gentleman who became interested in non-fatal suicide leaps from high buildings. Investigating a series of these cases, he found that in the non-fatal leap the victim usually landed flat on his stomach or back, so that the long bones or the head was not driven into the trunk. The lesson for pilots is obvious.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. D.: If one suffered with chronic bronchitis and almost constant coughs and colds for the past 20 years and then developed a chronic sinus disease, would this sinus infection be the result of the chronic bronchitis?

Answer: Sinus infection and chronic bronchitis almost invariably go together, but in my experience the sinus disease causes the bronchitis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by mail. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Food," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diets," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO
Miss Grace Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hoffman of Walnut township, returned after a trip to New York City and Washington, D. C. She was one of 12 pupils who accompanied their teacher, Mrs. Charlotte Gamble, accordion instructor, of Columbus on this trip.

Meeker Terwilliger, attorney, was named for the chairmanship of the committee in charge of Circleville's celebration of the 150th anniversary of the settlement of the Northwest Territory.

Despite a light rain, over 1,000 persons attended the annual Clarksburg field day celebration in the E. L. Hurst grove.

10 YEARS AGO
Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gatrell, Miss Evelyn Gatrell, Miss Lillian Young and Miss Elizabeth Tolbert left for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warner and James Gatrell at Kingsport, Tenn.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Benick W. Dunlap, Mrs. Dunlap and their daughter, Mary, returned to Washington, D. C., after a three-week cruise in the Caribbean sea. The Dunlap family home was near Kingsport.

William Compton, 69, West Main street, narrowly escaped death when he apparently lost his footing and fell backwards to the ground from the top of a 25-foot straw-rick in the yard of the Container Corporation of America.

25 YEARS AGO
Herbert F. Martell, formerly of Circleville and brother of Mrs. L. C. Hammel and Mrs. Lewis Fohl, was in Washington, D. C., where he was employed by the government as expert motor tester in the aviation corps.

Miss Mary Robbins, soprano soloist, was given highest praise for her numbers in an excellent program presented by the Municipal band of Dallas, Tex., at an evening concert in Oak Lawn Park. She was a former Circleville girl.

MAMMOTH FISH FRY

Mark's Wife
by MARIE BLIZARD
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER ONE

SHE HAD BEEN writing for more than two hours and now her fingers, chilled and cramped, refused to hold the pen. She rubbed her hands together to warm them and saw how white and incompetent the unrelieved black of her long sleeves made them appear. She sighed softly and the sound made her conscious of other small sounds in the lonely quiet of the chilling room: a mouse in the old walls, the lisp of a dying fire in the hearth, a lick of a puppy tongue against a puppy paw, the ticking of a clock marking the passing of this first night alone.

It was after ten and she couldn't remember if she had eaten anything since breakfast.

She rose and pushed away from her the papers that were covered with columns of figures. She moved them toward the back of the desk where Mark's uncovered typewriter stood. She hadn't even learned to use that. There would be no one to use it now. She drew a black cover over its worn keys.

With the puppy at her heels she went into the kitchen, avoiding a glance at the closed door of the room from which they had taken Mark that afternoon. The windows were open in there to let out the heavy scent of the flowers, and the cold November air came out from under the door.

It was cold in the kitchen, but when she turned on the light and put the kettle on to boil, she saw things on the table and the warmth of gratitude flowed into her. She stood looking down at the gifts that had been brought to her, a loaf of home-baked bread, a small roasted chicken and other delicacies. Modesty came into her tired eyes. THEY had been kind.

They had been kind in so many ways, those neighbors to whom she had so long been a stranger because Mark . . .

But she mustn't think of that now. Mark had been good and kind. No, Mark had not been kind; she had said that to herself, knowing that the quality of kindness is the reflection of an inner warmth, and Mark had been cold.

She cut slices of the bread and poured a cup of strong tea hungrily, but when she had eaten and drunk a little, she pushed the plate away from her, conscious of a greater hunger that had always been a part of her.

Had Mark loved her?

She had never known; she never, because he was always remote, had asked him. Perhaps she had been afraid and that was why she had accepted his physical presence, the aspect of ONENESS as enough to make their marriage what a marriage should be. For five years she had been his wife, the wife, she hoped, he'd wanted. Anxiously she searched her memory, going back through the first months when Mark had been the brilliant political reporter on the Times, and on through the years after he'd quit to write his book and articles that brought in meager returns, and they'd come to South Wintridge to buy this old house and settle down, but never to be a part of the small community she'd loved from the beginning.

She could remember how eagerly she had hoped to find homely, simple identification with other women in the little town, the deep shared interests of other women like herself. But Mark would not have understood. He had wanted none of them. "Folksy things," he called them. So she had put her wants aside to live in his shadow. She wondered if he knew, now that he was gone.

She washed her cup and saucer and put the food away. Then she put cereal into a double boiler and laid out a tray with Sonny's little mug and spoon and plate for the morning.

The cocker's big brown eyes sent her a pleading message.

"You want to go out, don't you, Paddy?" she said. Her own voice startled her in the silence.

The puppy bounded into the hall and she followed, opening the door wide. She stood there for a full minute, silhouetted against the light. With her head up, she breathed deeply of the cold refreshing air. Then she turned quickly and went in, almost slamming the door back of her as if to keep out the cold and the world outside, to return to the safe harbor of her walls.

Half a block away, across the tree-lined green that separated the two sides of Maple street, Tony Bradshaw, coming from a late call at Judge Bleeker's house, had seen the square of light and her silhouette, a quick shaft of feeling went straight from his eyes to his heart and he paused for a moment to label something he had seen in the brief glimpse of her and he said to himself, "It's gal-lan-try!"

Without stopping to leave his doctor's bag in the car at the curb, he hurried, his long legs half running, across the green and up the worn steps of the broad verandah of her house. He lifted the knocker and let it fall gently.

Then he waited, with his senses quickening, hearing her quick footsteps on the bare boards of the hall before she opened the door.

"Oh, Tony! It's you! How good of you to come! Her voice was full and low.

For a moment he didn't seem to know what to say. "I've been paying some calls in the neighborhood. Thought maybe you might need something to make you sleep."

They both looked at his black doctor's bag.

Barbara thought, "How self-conscious I've become already, wondering what the neighbors will think of a man coming to see me at this hour. I'm glad he brought his bag."

Aloud she said, "That's very thoughtful, Tony, but I shan't need anything."

"Furnace need looking after . . . or anything like that?"

She smiled at him then. "I'm a pretty good man of the house . . . But come in."

He followed her into the low-ceilinged living room and dropped his hat and coat on a chair. She sat in the rocker where he had first seen her. He sat down across from her. No ready words came to his lips because she looked so pensive, so still, and for the first time since he'd known her, woe-begone.

It was her tremendous vitality, a glowing quality about her that had first drawn him to her, but now that, too, was cloaked in the plain black garb that made her young maturity seem younger than her 27 years.

Young Dr. Bradshaw wanted to kneel beside her and put his arms around her still figure.

She said, "How's Mrs. Bleeker?"

"Fine," he said heartily. "Much too fine. I'm afraid she's going to get better in a hurry."

Barbara Wister gave him a maternal, understanding smile. "Poor Tony! You're too good a doctor. All your patients get well in a hurry."

For a moment they both thought of Mark Wister whom he had not been able to save. A bad cold and then quick pneumonia.

"Oh, I'll catch on to the knack of keeping 'em lingering some day. Just give me time." He said it smiling, wishing he could find something to say to wipe the bleak look off her face.

Tony Bradshaw got an old pipe and pouch out of his pocket. "There's a quality in medicine that neither schools nor city practice can give a medico," he said. "I'll find it here. When you know what makes a man sigh, you know more about his trouble than you do when you isolate his germ. It's an angle I'm interested in. Mechanics aren't enough for me. You get more than mechanics in a place like this."

She leaned forward, with her hands clasped around her knees and, looking into the fire, she said in strangely tense tones, "I like small towns, too, Tony."

"Do you, Barbara?" His voice was low. "Somehow that surprises me." He hadn't thought about it, but now he thought that she was like a glowing hibiscus in an old-fashioned garden; exotic and somehow not belonging. He was thinking and speaking, half to himself, "I don't really know anything about you."

Her fleeting smile had a touch of irony in it, but her voice was gentle.

"Only what most of the town knows, Tony? That I was an actress and the Wisters are 'queer people'?"

Useful Hints on the Use and Care of Your Refrigerator

Defrost whenever the frost on the freezing compartment exceeds 1/4 inch.

Clean the entire cabinet interior, including shelves and freezing compartment with a mild solution of warm water and baking soda each time you defrost.

Fan-cooled fin type condensers should be kept clean for maximum operating efficiency.

If your refrigerator has an open type mechanism it should be oiled twice a year with light motor oil.

Be sure the gasket on the door of your refrigerator makes a tight seal. If it gets loose there is too much wasteful air leakage. Have it replaced.

There is no magic formula for prolonging the life of your refrigerator. We suggest that you follow carefully the use and care instructions which came with the refrigerator. The tips given above should also be helpful in keeping your refrigerator working efficiently "for the duration."

DINAH SHORE SINGS

At the request of service men everywhere, Dinah Shore is going to feature the stirring song, "Yankee Doodle Dandy," from the new picture of the same name, on her Blue network program Friday at 9:30 p. m. Other tunes will be "He's My Guy," "Jingle Jangle Jingle" and the old favorite, "Do, Do It Again."

HEDDA HOPPER

When beautiful Paulette Goddard loses a beauty contest—that's news! And it will be covered in Hedda Hopper's on-the-set preview of Paulette's new picture, "The Crystal Ball," during "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood" Friday at 6:15 p. m. on CBS. The Hollywood commentator will also tell about visits to the sound stages where "The Desperadoes," with Randy Scott and Glenn Ford, and "They Got Me Covered," Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour opus, are before the cameras.

WILLIE HOWARD

Willie Howard, master of the dialect, comes to "Star Spangled Vaudeville" as one of the headliners on this NBC program Sunday, August 9, at 8 p. m. He has been starred in both pictures and musical comedy. Others are Sidney Fields, one-time "Mr. Guffy" of the Eddie Cantor programs, Carol Bruce, the stage and screen singer, the Three Oxfords, imitators of name bands, and Herb Shriner, Hoosier philosopher. Walter O'Keefe is emcee and Raymond Paige handles music.

DOROTHY KILGALLEN

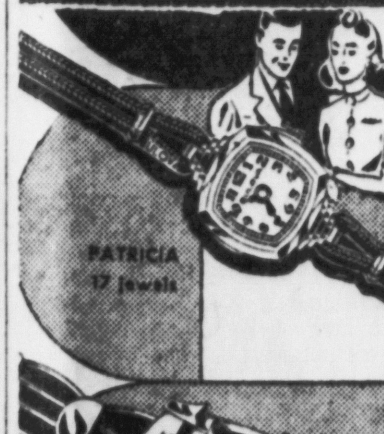

In the first of two broadcasts of "The Voice of Broadway" to air from Hollywood, Dorothy Kilgallen, noted air columnist, will play hostess to famed comedian Bob Hope, whose own radio series is vacationing now, when she interviews him Tuesday, August 11, at 6:15 p. m., on CBS.

KOSTELANETZ

Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra play three Victor Herbert tunes as a highlight of "Pause That Refreshes" over CBS Sunday, August 9, at 4:30 p. m. The numbers are "When You're

DEADLY DUCHESS

The head of a women's reformatory dispenses privileges to the inmates with more of an eye toward profit than justice, and "Mr. District Attorney" sets out to right matters, in "The Case of the Deadly Duchess," which airs Wednesday, August 12, at 9:30 p. m., e.w.t., over the NBC-Red network. His investigation reveals that conditions at the institution are a lot worse than he suspected and his own health comes close to hitting a correspondingly low level, before the deadly Duchess and her aides are taken into custody. Jay Jostyn plays the "Mr. District Attorney" role, with Vicki Vola as his secretary, Miss Miller, and Len Doyle as Harrington, his aide. Jerry Devine, co-author with Ed Byron, directs during Byron's recuperation from an operation, and Peter Van Steeden composes and conducts the cue music.

HELPFUL HINTS ON THE USE AND CARE OF YOUR REFRIGERATOR—No. 4

Useful Hints on the Use and Care of Your Refrigerator

Defrost whenever the frost on the freezing compartment exceeds ¼ inch.

Clean the entire cabinet interior, including shelves and freezing compartment with a mild solution of warm water and baking soda each time you defrost.

Fan-cooled fin type condensers should be kept clean for maximum operating efficiency.

If your refrigerator has an open type mechanism it should be oiled twice a year with light motor oil.

Be sure the gasket on the door of your refrigerator makes a tight seal. If it gets loose there is too much wasteful air leakage. Have it replaced.

There is no magic formula for prolonging the life of your refrigerator. We suggest that you follow carefully the use and care instructions which came with the refrigerator. The tips given above should also be helpful in keeping your refrigerator working efficiently "for the duration."

Collection Of Tin Cans Aids Brewers, Bottlers

By DREW PEARSON
(Major Robert S. Allen on active duty)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 — One sad commentary on the war effort is that the big brewing companies are now among beneficiaries of the patriotic campaign to collect tin cans. Together with certain soft drink bottling companies, they are getting, for bottle caps, a large percentage of the tin cans which housewives in 140 different communities have been so faithfully collecting to be used for bombs and war weapons.

Furthermore, the two chiefs of WPB's Conservation Division, Julius Rosenwald and Paul Cabot, have given their OK to letting these companies get a part of the tin cans.

This has aroused the vigorous opposition of lesser lights in the WPB, particularly the men charged with collecting tin. They are Burton M. Parks, chief of WPB's tin can unit; Leslie Merrill, deputy chief; and Edward Place, office administrator. They have been seething mad over the stand of their superiors and feel that the entire conservation program may be wrecked by this "business-as-usual" policy.

Cabot and Rosenwald give as their reason the fact American troops and war workers need soft drinks, and it is better for them to have soft drinks than intoxicating liquors. However, one big soft drink company, Coca Cola, has refused to take advantage of the collected tin cans to make bottle caps, and real fact is that the biggest users are brewers.

ARMY BALKS

But their superior, Col. Robert M. Falkenau, chief of the Quartermaster's Salvage Division did not. The Army, he said, was supposed to train men to fight, not save tin cans. And he didn't want army cooks cluttering up the kitchens with empty cans.

After much persuasion, however, Col. Falkenau was persuaded to try the idea at least in army camps around Pittsburgh and New Jersey. Later the plan spread to other camps.

It must be kept in mind that the salvage job is run through regular business channels. When you save tin for national defense, it goes to your local community organization. The organization sells it for a nominal sum to "de-tinning" plants, where it is prepared for use in munitions industries as scrap steel and tin or as scrap for bombs, all at a price set by WPB.

When the Army Quartermaster Salvage Division makes its collections, it operates just as a village or municipality. It has a supply of junked material available for sale to the "de-tinning" outfits.

In the case of the Army, just as it was giving A-1 cooperation, the brewers and some soft drink bottlers stepped in and offered the Quartermaster three times as much the price set for the tin cans by WPB. Simultaneously hospitals, colleges, municipal governments received lush offers from the bottlers and brewers.

So local salvage committees, which have accomplished a tough, patriotic job, are beginning to get sore. And the tragedy is that the next time a call comes to collect and save a vital war material, it may not be so easy.

SCRAP PILE OF COUNTY MOUNTS TO 90 TON MARK

Salvage officials active in Pickaway county for the last two weeks hope to have 90 tons of scrap metal and rubber on their gigantic pile in the yard of the county highway garage, West High street, by Friday night.

Response has been excellent, officials say, with some rural residents, who have already helped to send the scrap pile sky high, calling for WPA trucks to return for additional loads.

Wilbur B. Knox of Columbus, assigned here to speed up the program, urges farmers to dispose of their scrap only to trucks whose vehicles are well marked with the sign: "Government Scrap Collection." Receipts are issued to all persons who provide scrap of any sort whether they give it to the government or whether they sell it.

Everything from clocks to sewing machines, sleighs, farm equipment, boilers, heating plants is being collected. "Nothing is too large or too small for collection," Knox pointed out.

Less than half of the county has been covered to date, Knox declared, indications being that more than 200 tons of scrap will be gleaned here. Any person having scrap which he wishes collected should telephone No. 255, the county garage, and a truck will be assigned.

MEL OTT'S LADS BLAST BUMS IN HOMER BARRAGE

Hal Schumacher Too Tough For Leaders; New York Crew Nears Reds

By International News Service
Dodgers faced the Boston Braves in Brooklyn today figuring that what happened to them yesterday shouldn't happen to any self respecting champions and present leaders in the National League.

Manager Leo Durocher grabbed a morning paper along with some scrambled eggs to make sure memory wasn't playing him tricks. Nope, it wasn't. The sports report showed that the Giants had thumped his peons, 8 to 0, with every last tally coming as a result of a home run.

The Giants' boss, Chunky Mel Ott, hit a couple of round-trippers, his 17th and 18th of the season, and nos. 432 and 433 of his Major League career. Buster Maynard busted one out of the park and so did Billy Werber and Mickey Wittek.

While the Giants' bats were booming, Hal Schumacher pitched steadily to a shutout. The five Giant home runs brought the teams total to 82, largest amount collected thus far in either league.

Nearing Redlegs

As a result of the thundering victory, the Giants today are a game and a half back of Cincinnati for third place and the Dodgers nine and a half games ahead of St. Louis for the league lead.

All other teams in the league were idle yesterday. In the American league Lefty Edgar Smith finally won his third victory of the season by hurling Chicago to a 4 to 1 win over the Detroit Tigers for the White Sox' sixth straight triumph.

Wilbur Butland won his first decision of the year when the Boston Red Sox whipped the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 0. Butland permitted only four hits in amassing the shutout and placing the Red Sox half a game back of the idle Cleveland Indians for second place. Two walks, plus singles by Jim Tabor and Johnny Peacock in the second inning scored the winning runs.

Borowy Blasted

The league-leading Yankees were trimmed 6 to 3 by the Washington Senators for the second straight time when Hank Borowy was knocked out of the box in the sixth inning of a night game.

Buck Newsom won his ninth game of the year, giving the Senators 14 wins out of 21 games. Allowing 11 hits he nevertheless left nine Yanks stranded on bases.

LEADING HITTERS

National: Reiser, Dodgers .343; Lombardi, Braves .333; Medwick, Dodgers .326.

American: Gordon, Yankees .343; Williams, Red Sox .341; Wright, White Sox .339.

GETTO NAMES AIDE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 — After having served together in coaching berths at the University of Kansas, Mike Getto and Bill Hargis will resume their association with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Pro football league this fall. Getto recently was appointed head coach to succeed Jock Sutherland—who entered the service—and has selected Hargis to tutor the Dodger ends and handle the scouting.

UMPIRE APPOINTED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 7—American Association President George M. Trautman announced the appointment of George Murray of the Piedmont League to the umpiring staff of the A.A. Murray will report Sunday at Columbus where he will work the Kansas City-Red Bird doubleheader.

LUTHERANS COP LEAGUE HONORS

Fifteen Runs Piled Up On United Brethren Boys In Important Tilt

Softball representatives of Trinity Lutheran church won the second round championship in the Church league Thursday evening in a runaway contest with the United Brethren team, first round titlist. The score was 15 to 4, the U. B. lads being unable to dent the plate until two were out in the seventh inning. A collision between Pitcher Jim Wells and First Sacker Clark Martin permitted an easy pop fly to drop safely, four runs scoring after that.

Wells slants had the U. B. boys under control the whole way. Poor support back of Frank Heath permitted the Lutherans to pile up the markers.

Lee Siegwald led the attack for the winners, the third baseman clubbing two line drive home runs to center field.

Lutheran athletes are unbeaten in the second round. Another round is being planned, winners of the three to compete for the Church loop championship.

HARRY BOBO BANNED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7 — Pittsburgh's ranking heavyweight Harry Bobo, today was permanently barred from further boxing matches in Pennsylvania because of lack of sight in one eye. In announcing his decision, Boxing Commissioner Leon Rains explained: "I had been hearing that his eyes were bad, so I had him examined in Pittsburgh by Dr. M. R. Goldman, who reported to me that one of Bobo's eyes is completely gone and that if he should lose the sight in the other he would be blinded for life."

Columbus Tops Milwaukee In Both Ends Of Double; Kaws Trail By Single Point

COLUMBUS, Aug. 7 — Columbus Red Birds today ruled the American association roost after they slammed out a double win over Milwaukee.

The 8-1 and 2-1 wins placed Columbus one percentage point ahead of the Kansas City Blues who were splitting a twin bill with Toledo, dropping the first, 4-3, and taking the nightcap, 1-0. The double loss dumped the Brewers into third place, 2 1/2 games behind the triumphant Birds.

St. Paul sunk deeper into the league cellar after losing twice, 6-1 and 3-2, to Indianapolis, and Louisville copped a double win, 1-0 and 7-2, from the Minneapolis Millers. The first game went to 10 innings.

1,000 FISH PUT IN BIG DARBY AND DEER CREEK

Here's news for fishermen!

Clarence Francis, Pickaway county conservation officer, was scheduled Friday afternoon to put 1,000 matured fish, most of which were to be bass, in Big Darby and Deer creeks.

Francis said a truck carrying the fish from Sandusky was scheduled to arrive in the afternoon.

TALBERT VS. SCHROEDER

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 7 — William Talbert and Ted Schroeder are to face each other today in the semi-final singles brackets of the annual eastern grass court tennis championship at the Westchester Country club following yesterday's brilliant play in which the South Americans — Francisco Segura, of Ecuador and Alejo Russel, of Argentina were eliminated.

Francis M. Thompson

Democratic Candidate For STATE SENATE

Mr. Thompson is outstanding as a civic spirited citizen. He is a hard worker and conscientious. His appearance inspires confidence. His training and experience makes him eminently fitted for the position he now aspires.

He is a lawyer; a graduate of Ohio State University College of Law; a former president of North Side Improvement Assn. of Columbus; was elected State Representative three times in Franklin County; was secretary of the Special Joint Tax Committee of the 83rd General Assembly; and is a member of Northminster Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Thompson took a prominent part in the defeat of the proposed amendments to the Charter of Columbus, in 1940 and 1942, designed to increase taxes on real estate.

As a taxpayer, Mr. Thompson was responsible for pressing litigation, and as a lawyer, he was largely responsible in that litigation, for the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio denying tax exemption to the dwelling units of the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority.

If nominated and elected, he will guard the interest of the taxpayer in the General Assembly, as he guarded it as a private citizen, a taxpayer and a lawyer.

He has made it plain that he has high ideals and purposes, and that he is and will continue to be an invaluable asset to his community.

Collection Of Tin Cans Aids Brewers, Bottlers

By DREW PEARSON
(Major Robert S. Allen on active duty)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 — One sad commentary on the war effort is that the big brewing companies are now among beneficiaries of the patriotic campaign to collect tin cans. Together with certain soft drink bottling companies, they are getting, for bottle caps, a large percentage of the tin cans which housewives in 140 different communities have been so faithfully collecting to be used for bombs and war weapons.

Furthermore, the two chiefs of WPE's Conservation Division, Julius Rosenwald and Paul Cabot, have given their OK to letting these companies get a part of the tin cans.

This has aroused the vigorous opposition of lesser lights in the WPE, particularly the men charged with collecting tin. They are Burton M. Parks, chief of WPE's tin can unit; Leslie Merrill, deputy chief; and Edward Place, office administrator. They have been seething mad over the stand of their superiors and feel that the entire conservation program may be wrecked by this "business-as-usual" policy.

Cabot and Rosenwald give as their reason the fact American troops and war workers need soft drinks, and it is better for them to have soft drinks than intoxicating liquors. However, one big soft drink company, Coca Cola, has refused to take advantage of the collected tin cans to make bottle caps, and real fact is that the biggest users are brewers.

SEETHING WPE Here is the inside story on the situation which has been boiling inside the WPE for days.

When tin and iron first became scarce, the brewers and bottling companies were ordered by WPE to reduce their use of bottle caps to 70 percent of 1940. They protested. An appeal hearing was held, but the order was kept in effect, and meanwhile the tin can unit of the WPE had started its campaign to get housewives to save tin cans.

This was not an easy campaign, first, because tin cans are bulky unless cut in two and spread flat; second, because collection is difficult. However, the campaign was started in 36 larger eastern cities, then extended to 104 additional cities, all in cooperation with local mayors and local salvage committees, which did an excellent job.

Simultaneously, WPE's tin can unit went to Charles R. Van Etten and Lieut. Herbert J. Cohen of the Salvage Division of the Army's Quartermaster Corps and arranged to salvage large sized tin cans used in great quantity by the Army. Van Etten and Cohen welcomed the idea.

ARMY BALKS

But their superior, Col. Robert M. Falkenau, chief of the Quartermaster's Salvage Division did not. The Army, he said, was supposed to train men to fight, not save tin cans. And he didn't want army cooks cluttering up the kitchens with empty cans.

After much persuasion, however, Col. Falkenau was persuaded to try the idea at least in army camps around Pittsburgh and New Jersey. Later the plan spread to other camps.

It must be kept in mind that the salvage job is run through regular business channels. When you save tin for national defense, it goes to your local community organization. The organization sells it for a nominal sum to "ditching" plants, where it is prepared for use in munitions industries as scrap steel and tin or as scrap for bombs, all at a price set by WPE.

When the Army Quartermaster Salvage Division makes its collections, it operates just as a village or municipality. It has a supply of junked material available for sale to the "ditching" outfits.

In the case of the Army, just as it was giving A-1 cooperation, the brewers and some soft drink bottlers stepped in and offered the Quartermaster three times as much the price set for the tin cans by WPE. Simultaneously hospitals, colleges, municipal governments received lush offers from the bottlers and brewers.

So local salvage committees, which have accomplished a tough, patriotic job, are beginning to get sore. And the tragedy is that the next time a call comes to collect and save a vital war material, it may not be so easy.

PUTT PUTS BEN HOGAN IN LEAD IN GOLF EVENT

TORONTO, Aug. 7—A 10-foot putt, sunk on the 15th green put Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa. ahead today in the first round of the Canadian Open golf tournament for a record-breaking 65.

The little Pennsylvanian just edged out Craig Wood of Mamaroneck and Ralph Guldahl of Santa Fe, both of whom just prior also set a new record for the course with a tied 66.

Going around the 6,543-yard Mississauga course in seven under par, Hogan broke the record of 68 previously set in 1931 by Walter Hagen when winning the Canadian Open for that year. Hagen's score was tied in 1937 by Gordon Brydson but never beaten until yesterday's play.

Tony Penna, of Dayton, Ohio, shot a 69 while tied at 70 were Willie Lamb of Toronto, Bobby Reith of Windsor, Jules Huot of Quebec and Jerry Proulx of Montreal.

MEL OTT'S LADS BLAST BUMS IN HOMER BARRAGE

Hal Schumacher Too Tough For Leaders; New York Crew Nears Reds

By International News Service
Dodgers faced the Boston Braves in Brooklyn today figuring that what happened to them yesterday shouldn't happen to any self respecting champions and present leaders in the National league.

Manager Leo Durocher grabbed a morning paper along with some scrambled eggs to make sure memory wasn't playing him tricks. Nope, it wasn't. The sports report showed that the Giants had thumped his peons, 8 to 0, with every last tally coming as a result of a home run.

The Giants' boss, Chunky Mel Ott, hit a couple of round-trippers, his 17th and 18th of the season, and nos. 432 and 433 of his Major League career. Buster Maynard busted one out of the park and so did Billy Werber and Mickey Witke.

While the Giants' bats were booming, Hal Schumacher pitched steadily to a shutout. The five Giant home runs brought the teams total to 82, largest amount collected thus far in either league.

Nearing Redlegs As a result of the thundering victory, the Giants today are a game and a half back of Cincinnati for third place and the Dodgers nine and a half games ahead of St. Louis for the league lead.

All other teams in the league were idle yesterday. In the American league Lefty Edgar Smith finally won his third victory of the season by hurling Chicago to a 4 to 1 win over the Detroit Tigers for the White Sox' sixth straight triumph.

Wilburn Butland won his first decision of the year when the Boston Red Sox whipped the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 0. Butland permitted only four hits in amassing the shutout and placing the Red Sox half a game back of the idle Cleveland Indians for second place. Two walks, plus singles by Jim Tabor and Johnny Peacock in the second inning scored the winning runs.

The scheduled twin bill between Cleveland and St. Louis was postponed because of weather.

Borowy Blasted

The league-leading Yankees were trimmed 6 to 3 by the Washington Senators for the second straight time when Hank Borowy was knocked out of the box in the sixth inning of a night game.

Buck Newsom won his ninth game of the year, giving the Senators 14 wins out of 21 games. Allowing 11 hits he nevertheless left nine Yanks stranded on bases.

LUTHERANS COP LEAGUE HONORS

Fifteen Runs Piled Up On United Brethren Boys In Important Tilt

Softball representatives of Trinity Lutheran church won the second round championship in the Church league Thursday evening in a runaway contest with the United Brethren team, first round titlist. The score was 15 to 4, the U. B. lads being unable to dent the plate until two were out in the seventh inning. A collision between Pitcher Jim Wells and First Sacker Clark Martin permitted an easy pop fly to drop safely, four runs scoring after that.

Wells slants had the U. B. boys under control the whole way. Poor support back of Freck Heath permitted the Lutherans to pile up the markers.

Lee Siegwald led the attack for the winners, the third baseman clubbing two line drive home runs to center field.

Lutheran athletes are unbeaten in the second round. Another round is being planned, winners of the three to compete for the Church loop championship.

HARRY BOBO BANNED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7 — Pittsburgh's ranking heavyweight Harry Bobo, today was permanently barred from further boxing matches in Pennsylvania because of lack of sight in one eye. In announcing his decision, Boxing Commissioner Leon Rains explained: "I had been hearing that his eyes were bad, so I had him examined in Pittsburgh by Dr. M. R. Goldman, who reported to me that one of Bobo's eyes is completely gone and that if he should lose the sight in the other he would be blinded for life."

Candidates Staging Last Hour Drive Before Primary Election

LIGHT BALLOT FORECAST BY ELECTION BOARD

Local Contests Lend Interest With Congress And Senate Sharing Spotlight

12 HOUR VOTING PERIOD

Claypool And Hastings Staging Interesting Contest For Washington Post

Candidates of Pickaway county, of the 11th congressional district and of the tenth Ohio senatorial district are getting in their last efforts to gain nomination to various office at next Tuesday's primary election. Polls open at 8:30 a. m. and close 12 hours later, with election board officials predicting a light vote.

Several contests are on the ballot locally, with congressional and senatorial district races drawing their share of attention.

County posts at stake are representative to the general assembly, this position left open for competition when William D. Radcliff volunteered for Army service; county commissioner, aspirants seeking the post from which C. Edward Wright, of Harrison township is retiring after two terms, and county auditor, held by Forrest Short, who is seeking nomination on the Republican ticket.

Hot Assembly Race

Democrats have three candidates for the assembly nomination, including Lawrence E. Goeller, former Democratic committee chairman in the county; Ralph E. May, twice a county commissioner, and Harry B. Welch, nominee of his party two years ago against Radcliff. On the Republican side of the ticket for assembly will be Herbert E. Louis, New Holland merchant.

Commissioner race finds Tull

M. Barnes, former Circleville councilman, and Wayne Brown of Madison township seeking Democratic support, with Lyman Penn of Pickaway township and E. A. McCoy of Washington township running on the G. O. P. ticket.

Two former county office holders are vying for the right to oppose Forrest Short in November for the auditor's office. They are Earl L. Hoffman, Washington township, former county treasurer, and D. Adrian Yates, Circleville, former clerk of courts.

Short is unopposed for nomination.

Congress Is Goal

The congressional race is developing into a warm one with two candidates on each ticket. Congressman Harold K. Claypool, of Chillicothe, seeking re-election, is opposed by Robert U. Hastings of Lancaster, prosecuting attorney of Fairfield county. Republican candidates are Dr. Walter C. Brehm, of Logan, representative in the general assembly from Hocking county, and Clarence L. Chute, of New Lexington, a candidate two years ago.

State senate primary finds Pickaway county, which is linked with Franklin county in the Tenth district, represented by only one candidate, Earl C. Reed of Walnut township who teaches in Columbus West high school. He is a Democrat.

ROTARY LEARNS SELF DEFENSE FROM EXPERTS

Rotarians are convinced that when an Ohio Highway patrolman gives an order compliance should be speedy. Otherwise painful things could happen. Just what was demonstrated at the club luncheon Thursday by two members of the patrol.

Peaceful business and professional businessmen who couldn't fight even if they were angered to the point of desire, learned how to handle the belligerent ones. Arms and legs were twisted to the point where just a few ounces more of pressure would have brought on fractures, nerves were tortured, guns were taken away from attackers.

It was an excellent show, staged in a true professional manner. One Rotarian in later comment said: "I absorbed the entire thing and right now I know exactly what should be done in any given emergency. Only one little hitch. It will have to be done by a highway patrolman."

Three GOP Candidates

On the Republican side are three candidates, E. E. Addison, of Columbus, a present member of the senate; Roscoe Walcutt, an attorney, and S. G. Harvey, and advertising manager.

One post in the senate is open at the present time, Grant P.

This Ain't Nuthin'

Age is no bar to a good time here as William Corius, 84, veteran of the Indian wars, gets set to down a stein of beer at an Old Settlers' picnic in Chicago. "Shucks, this is nothing. When I drove those Injuns out of Oklahoma I really got thirsty," says Corius. The old settlers met in Harms park, near Chicago.

Ward of Columbus having died when in office.

Candidates for the various state offices are receiving their share of attention in Pickaway county, also, the Democratic race for nomination for governor being paramount among voters.

State candidates include:

Governor: John W. Bricker, Republican; Walter F. Heer, Clarence H. Knisley, John McSweeney, Frank A. Dye and Joseph T. Ferguson, Democrats.

Lieutenant-governor: Paul M. Herbert, Republican; R. M. Wingardner and George D. Nye, Democrats.

Secretary of state: A. R. Thomas, Edward J. Hummel and Dale Stump, Republicans; John E. Sweeney, Democrat.

Treasurer of state: Joseph Ehrhart, Republican; Harry V. Armstrong, Robert S. Cox and John C. Fowler, Democrats.

Attorney general: Thomas J. Herbert, Republican; Joseph C. Allen, husband of a former Circleville girl; Herbert S. Duffy and William J. Hart, Democrats.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF PICKAWAY COUNTY

As you know I was the Democratic nominee in the last election 1940, I ran a very close race for the office of Representative to the General Assembly of Ohio.

I think you will agree as all of my friends do that I am entitled to a second chance, because if nominated I will be elected this time.

I greatly appreciate the loyal support you gave me in the 1940 election.

Please vote for me on August 11th, and ask your friends to do likewise, and I promise if nominated and elected I will vote and work in the State Legislature for the best interest of all the people in Pickaway County.

Hoping to be of service to you in any way I can, I am

Very gratefully yours,

HARRY B. WELCH

JACKSON TEACHER QUILTS TO TAKE JOB IN BANK

Thomas Rose, popular Jackson township school teacher and coach of athletics, has resigned his position to accept employment with the Saltcreek Valley Bank, Laurelsville.

Rose taught only one year at Jackson, removing there from Gibsonville. His first year was a successful one.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, said that he had been informed Rose was to become cashier of the bank.

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Two Glouster, O., youths were released Thursday afternoon from city police custody when no charges were filed against them for tampering with the parked automobile of Earl A. Smith, East Main street. The youths put in operation an automobile alarm when they touched Smith's car early Thursday in front of his home. Smith declined to file charges and so did police.

Monroe township board of education has completed its teaching staff for the 1942-43 term, providing none of the instructors hired decides to accept other employment which is reported to have been offered.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor of Clarksburg was named to teach second and third grades; Miss Hazel Kreuzer of Columbus was chosen for English and Latin instruction; Mrs. Rosemary Hoehn for music and Thomas Hazelbaker as high school principal and Commercial teacher. Hazelbaker is already employed as superintendent at Cherry Fork, Adams county, and he is not certain whether he can break his contract.

FATHER BUSIC ASSUMES DUTY AT CITY CHURCH

The Rev. Fr. Joseph Busic, Columbus, recently ordained, is serving temporarily as pastor for St. Joseph's Catholic church during hospitalization of the Rev. Fr. Edward Reidy. The latter is a patient in St. Francis hospital, Columbus.

Father Busic is a former councillor at Camp St. Joseph, Lockbourne, and is an acquaintance of numerous younger members of the congregation.

JACKSON TEACHER QUILTS TO TAKE JOB IN BANK

Thomas Rose, popular Jackson township school teacher and coach of athletics, has resigned his position to accept employment with the Salt Creek Valley Bank, Laurelville.

Rose taught only one year at Jackson, removing there from Gibsonville. His first year was a successful one.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, said that he had been informed Rose was to become cashier of the bank.

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Two Gouster, O., youths were released Thursday afternoon from city police custody when no charges were filed against them for tampering with the parked automobile of Earl A. Smith, East Main street. The youths put in operation an automobile alarm when they touched Smith's car early Thursday in front of his home. Smith declined to file charges and so did police.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF PICKAWAY COUNTY

As you know I was the Democratic nominee in the last election 1940, I ran a very close race for the office of Representative to the General Assembly of Ohio.

I think you will agree as all of my friends do that I am entitled to a second chance, because if nominated I will be elected this time.

I greatly appreciate the loyal support you gave me in the 1940 election.

Please vote for me on August 11th, and ask your friends to do likewise, and I promise if nominated and elected I will vote and work in the State Legislature for the best interest of all the people in Pickaway County.

Hoping to be of service to you in any way I can, I am

Very gratefully yours,
HARRY B. WELCH
